

Charles Feierabend has been actively involved in music from an early age, studying violin from the age of 6 and singing in every choir he came across. After graduating from Colgate University with a bachelor's degree in history, he returned to the world of music to pursue a second bachelor's at The Hartt School, this time in music history.

Charles is an accomplished violinist and tenor, and spends much of his free time performing when and wherever he can. This includes singing in the Schola Cantorum at the Cathedral of St. Joseph, membership in the vocal chamber group Alchemy and various engagements in and around the Hartford area.
